STUDENT SPOTLIGHT

DANIEL MUHEME, LLM
From Belgium

“ The LLM in Global Antitrust at the Antonin Scalia Law School provided me with the opportunity to interact on a daily basis with some of the world’s most renowned antitrust scholars and practitioners. Their passion and insights permeate the program and motivate students to engage in top-level class discussions and to participate in extra-curricular activities. The program’s value is also evident in its proximity to Washington, D.C., the heart of the antitrust world. The program’s high-level studies and networking opportunities together have opened doors for me that would otherwise remain closed. For example, I received the opportunity to do an internship at the Department of International Affairs of the Federal Trade Commission. ”

Scalia Law students have unparalleled access to the Global Antitrust Institute activities, which includes hosting academic conferences and roundtables, providing economic education programs to judges and regulators around the world, and fostering research in antitrust law and economics.

The GAI was created to promote the application of sound economic analysis to competition enforcement around the world through:

- Economics Institutes, which are economic education programs for judges and competition enforcers from around the world.
- Competition Advocacy Program, which provides recommendations to foreign competition agencies on draft laws and guidelines.
